GRAIN BATES REDUCED.

The Alton Accepts the Figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

State Commerce Commission.

Chicago, Ill., July 26.—The Chicago & Alton today gave notice of a reduction in freight rateson grain from the Missouri fiver to Chicago. The reduction is to the figures recommended by the inter-state commerce commission, 17 cents for corn and 20 cents for wheat. This is in line with the policy of a majority of the roads that have recently successed in advancing cattle rates, the latter action being partly in the recently succeeded in advancing cattle-rates, the latter action being partly in the nature of an offset to the lowering of the rates on grain. The transaction, however, was not entirely expected, as the commit-tee that authorized the advance in cattle rates falled to take any action as to grain. A meeting of the lines, interested will be held Saturday when the attitude of the other roads regarding the Alton's depar ture will be the subject of consideration.

Trouble Anticipated Over the Northwestern's Depot Facilities.

Kansas City, Mo., July 26.—There may be serious trouble when the Northwestern be serious trouble when the Northwestern attempts tomorrow to use the union depot facilities which it acquired recently through an arrangement with the Missouri Pacific. Superintendent Fish, of the Union Depot company, says the Missouri Facific has no right to allow another road to use the Missouri Pacific union depot terminal facilities. He says he will prevent the Northwestern trains from entering the union depot if it trains from entering the union depot if it takes an army to do it. On the other hand Superintendent Dolby, of the Missouri Pacific, says that the Missouri Pacific owns the Northwestern and that the latter read has a right to its union depot fasilities. He says moreover that the Northwestern trains will enter the union depot tomorrow if it takes an army to bring them in. When these two armies clash trouble is expected.

DISLIKES HOUSEWORK.

YOUNG GIRL WHO PREFERS TO READ AND IMPROVE HERSELF.

ome Considerations Upon the Attitude of the Educated Young Woman of Today Toward Work to Be Done in the House-Menial Duties Dignified.

The following letter has been received at "I wish to state my case to you. Two years ago I was graduated at a school for girls. Since that time I have lived at home with my parents. I like to read and study, but my mother thinks I should keep myself busy for the greater part of the day about housework and sewing. Now, I do not like housework and I do like to study, and furthermore, it seems to me that I should be doing wrong to give so much time to housework when I might be improving myself. Now will you tell me candidly just what you think about it, and oblige yours truly.

OLIVE."

Just what we think about what, Olive?

You should be a little more definite in stating your needs in a case so desperate as this appears to be. What do we think about your having to do housework when you would prefer to study? We think your preference is not first to be consulted. The need for your doing it is the first ques tion to be answered, and you should have given us some indication of this. A GRAVE PROBLEM.

But let us begin at the beginning. The problem you state is a grave one, and one that is every now and then coming up to be deced. With women entering into the broad fields of the higher education and sipping the sweets of a constantly widening culture, while the sphere specially designated as "woman's" still claims so much of their thought and attention, it is pertinent to ask and to discuss what shall be the attitude of the educated young woman of today toward the undignified and unpleasant details of housework.

The perveding opinion in the minds of men-yes and of wemen, too-in regard to these things is that the instinct for household duties is innate in the truly womanly heart. This much is true: The love of home and family is inborn in the heart of every weman. Household duties she tol-erates because she loves these others. But no weman feels a hidden longing for the companionship of pote and pans, or feels her whole soul go out in yearning toward sauces and salads, or recognizes the cook-ing range as next of Mn. No woman loves these things. Nor should she. That she does them is of grace and not of nature.

This proposition may be laid down at the outset as broad enough to cover all the ground. A woman ought to do just as much of the housework in a house as actual necessity lays upon her in securing the comfort and welfare of the home. To do less than this is unworthy; to do more, merely for the sake of work, is undigni-And here is where you failed to explicit, Olive. How necessary is it that this work should be done by the women members of your family? If your father is able to supply the means wherewith strong hands that have no other accom-plishment may be secured to do this work for you, and if you should then elect to be your own hower of wood and drawer of water, you would be lacking in a proper sense of personal dignity and of the fitness of things. You could, as you suggest, use your time to much better advantage.

GIRLS, DON'T MOUNT TOO HIGH. But on the other hand, don't mount too high a horse, Olive. Don't feel too keenly the value of your time and the duty of improving yourself. Just try to be a wise, healthy minded, sensible girl, and the self improvement may be taken for granted. It appears altogether probable from your letter that there is some necessity for your doing your share of the household work. If it be so, if in any way the burden of home cares is the heavier for your mother or for others because of your withdrawal from them, then you ought to be ashamed of yourself if you are unwilling to drop book or essay or brush and bare your own young strong arm and bring your own active brain to the rescue.

The dignity is in the worker, not in the work; and if you meet the dullest, meanest, most unconvenial detail of household life bravely and cheerfully, and discharge it just as well as you pessibly can, you will find the whole round of menial duties becoming dignified and ennebled. So they will minister quite as much to your happiness and to the improvement of your mind and to your spiritual growth as the best books you can read in the greatest numbers.—New York Evening Sun.

College Girls. The fact that the number of Wellesley and Harvard annex graduates from Boston is much smaller than one would naturally suppose it to be recalls the remark mad not long ago by a woman much interested in the education of girls belonging to fashionable society. "A society girl," this lady said, "loses caste by going to college."
There can be but little doubt that the daughters of the fear hundred do not go Advanced education is not a badge of the caste to which they belong. There is a present analogy which touches this case. Philips Fawcett could not be a wrangler-the law of the university was against that-and so her genius created for her a grade higher still, and she came out of the centest "above senior wrangler." The society girl may lose her caste by going to college, but she gets into a caste above the caste.-Boston Transcript.
